

Accreditation of Project Managers:

the Why, What & How of Application

by Society of Project Managers

The Accreditation of Project Managers (APM) Scheme will propel project management practice in the Built Environment & Construction Industry to greater heights in Practice Standards, Practice Competency and Practice Conduct. PM practitioners with PPM certification will be better recognised by the industry for excellence in competency and conduct. The APM scheme was launched on 6 June 2017. A number of PM practitioners have applied and obtained PPM certification.

SPM is conducting a seminar to share with SPM members and the construction professionals on the benefits of getting the PPM certification and the nuts and bolts of how to prepare and make a good APM application.

What you can expect to learn from this Seminar ...

- benefits of being APM certified
- basic requirements for APM application
- assessment requirements - PM competency standards and practice experience
- GAPPS Global PM Standards
- Application submission requirements

This is a golden opportunity for SPM members, PM practitioners and other construction professionals who want to know more about the APM scheme or are considering to be certified as a Professional Project Manager to attend this half day seminar and be engaged with our experienced trainers who are members of the SPM APM Committee.

Don't hesitate, do sign up now!
